Box No. V Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Claims 1-12	YES
	Claims _____	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims 1-12	YES
	Claims _____	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims 1-12	YES
	Claims _____	NO

2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

1. Reference is made to the following documents:

D1: EP-A-0 999 629 (ABB RESEARCH LTD), 10 May 2000
(2000-05-10)

D2: US-B1-6 424 266 (COISH ROBERT GEORGE ET AL),
23 July 2002 (2002-07-23)

D3: US-A-4 467 260 (MALLICK JR GEORGE T ET AL),
21 August 1984 (1984-08-21)

2. Independent claim 1

2.1 Document D1 is considered to be the prior art closest to the subject matter of claim 1 in the present application. Claim 1 in D1 discloses (the references in parentheses are to D1) a device for protecting an electrical machine against current overload (see page 6, line 43), comprising:

- a current value provider for providing an instantaneous value for the current in the electrical machine (see page 6, lines 44 to 48; "acquisition and processing means").

2.2 The subject matter of claim 1 in the present application differs from the known protection device in that it specifies the following:

- a prediction device for establishing a thermal motor model on the basis of the instantaneous current value, a specified current limit value and a time determined by the classification of the electrical machine, and for predicting an absolute or relative time value for a triggering reserve at which the thermal motor model reaches a value of 1, and
- an analysis device for analysing the time value for the triggering reserve in order to generate a control signal.

The subject matter of claim 1 is therefore novel (PCT Article 33(2)).

2.3 The problem addressed by the present invention can thus be seen as that of providing a simple way to determine a switch-off time.

2.4 The solution proposed in claim 1 of the application involves an inventive step (PCT Article 33(3)) for the following reasons:

The calculation of the thermal state equations in document D1 does not involve establishing a thermal motor model. Document D2 makes no mention of a "thermal motor model" as a thermodynamic variable. Document D3 discloses an motor starter in which the rotor temperature is shown exponentially. The rotor temperature is different from the thermal motor model.

Thus there is nothing in D1, D2 or D3 that would suggest the solution according to claim 1.

- 2.5 The phrase "time determined by the classification of the electrical machine" in claim 1 is vague and unclear, and leaves the reader in doubt as to the meaning of the technical feature referred to. The subject matter of the claim is therefore not clearly defined (PCT Article 6).

3. Independent claim 7

The observations made in connection with device claim 1 also apply to method claim 7. The subject matter of claim 9 can therefore also be considered novel and inventive.

4. Dependent claims 2-6 and 8-12

Claims 2 to 6 and 8 to 12 are dependent on claims 1 and 7 and therefore also meet the PCT requirements in respect of novelty and inventive step.
